Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from A Plain View: Of the Case of Professor W. Robertson Smith One who, after long residence abroad, comes home to find his Church in a state of considerable excitement, and to some extent at war within itself, about a theological question that has suddenly arisen, can hardly help inquiring into the cause of the agitation around him. And any inquiry he may make is made at least with this advantage - that he can judge dispassionately with greater ease than those whose circumstances have tended to draw them into argument before the issues were clearly stated or fully understood. And if upon inquiry it appear to such a one that much of the excitement is unnecessary, it is his duty to do a little, if he can, to calm it, by stating the case as it appears to an outsider in the controversy. I make no other apology than that I find myself in some such position as this for the few remarks that follow on the case of Professor Smith - remarks to which I do not doubt that such weight will be given as they may be found on examination to deserve. About the abstruser aspects of the case I am not entitled, because not fitted, to say much. Neither does it seem to me that it would be right to touch on it in so far as it is now before a Court of the Church. I wish to express no opinion as to whether it is possible or impossible, right or wrong, to bring a libel against Professor Smith. Questions of that kind must be left with those to whom they...
