A Joint Task Force Staff Structure for the New Millennium - Leaner, Faster, and More Responsive: Wright Flyer Paper No. 4

By Maj Lisa A Row

CreateSpace Independent Publishing Platform. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 46 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.1in. Our military future will likely be radically different from our past. Consequently, military personnel can prepare for this future by investigating ways to adapt to novel challenges posed by new weapons, new theories, or new organizations. This study explores the problem of how joint task force staffs should reorganize to improve future command and control to meet demands of the most likely future environment. The research methodology consisted of a literature search from a broad body of evidence. Sources included business literature, studies by organizations such as the Center for Naval Analyses, and research papers produced by other students. Several key changes envisioned for the military provide a foundation for the project and introduce future operational and environmental complexities. These changes include emerging international and national trends such as increased military operations other than war and growing military pressures to shrink but remain effective. Another trend, the revolution in military affairs, includes such aspects as a system of systems and dominant battle space awareness. Additionally, Joint Vision 2010 offers a...
