The beds are much thinner than within the ranges, and show an evident tendency toward a loss of coal also. Two seams of coal have been opened on the east side of the mountain, of 7 and 8 feet in thickness, respectively. In each of the seams the character continues to be of good grade steam coal, as the appended analyses will show. The formation is cut by several streams, the valleys of which give access to the seams, and a great deal of this coal will be mined. Further prospecting in this area is reported, and a thick seam of 20 feet added to the above coal content. The area is, roughly speaking, twentyfive miles long; and as it encircles the mountain, an average width for this length may be taken as one mile of available ground. This area, with 15 feet of coal, should produce 250,000,000 tons. Cascade Area.1 The Cascade area extends from south of Kananaskis river to within about twelve miles of the Saskatchewan.
